Greet's Difficulties.

Woodland Players' Hard Experience on Memorial Day.

Ben Greet and his Woodland Players gave a performance of Laurence House-man's miracle play, "The Star of Beth-lehem," at Bryn Mawr, last Monday, under trying conditions. It was an out-of-door performance, and when the comarrived they found no stage and no natural elevation to play on. Theatrical Marriage.

Bijou Fernandez to Wed W. L. Abingdon. Washington theatergoers will be interested in the announcement in London of the engagement of Bijou Fernandez and W. L. Abingdon, the English actor who was in America last season as leading man with Amelia Bingham.

Miss Fernandez has many friends in Washington through her excellent work as a member of the stock company at the Lafayette several years ago and later through her appearances during the season with Miss Bingham.

Mr. Abingdon is regarded as one of the foremost actors on the English stage and is immensely popular both through his work and personality. He long ago gained the reputation of being host to all American actors who journeyed to London, and when he came to America last year he received a royal welcome from the men he had entertained in England.

Miss Fernandez went to London last April, accompanied by her mother, and will return to America some time this month. No announcement of the date of the wedding has been made, but it is expected it will occur before the begin-ning of next season.

Notes of the Stage.

The new opera in which Fritzi Scheff is to be presented next season, and for which Stanislaus Stange will write the music, is to be called "The Queen of Hearts" instead of "The Two Roses," as it was originally intended. The lat-ter title was that of a play in which Sir Henry Irving made his first great London success in 1870.
